THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

"Sacred Principle"

Washington, July 30.—The principle of collective bargaining is one to which every enlightened employer subscribes and every labor leader and left-wing demagogue proclaims as sacred. Of course, it is not sacred, but it is a sound idea and no fair-minded man wants to break it down. Distinctly it is in the national interest to guard and retain it.

That is why it is particularly shocking that there should be collusion between a labor union and any Government agency to abrogate and suspend its normal processes. Yet that is exactly what is now charged by the company in the Allis-Chalmers strike which has been going on for nearly five months and in which are involved some 29,000 men. It is a serious thing when the Government, abandoning its traditional role of even-handed justice, becomes the ardent partisan of either side in an industrial-labor dispute.

IT IS such a serious departure from the position which the Government is supposed to assume and so clearly in conflict with any elemental concept of fairness, that the average citizen is justified in resentment. For thirteen years under the late Mr. Roosevelt the Government weight was always on the labor side. In every dispute between industry and labor the Administration assumed the former right and the latter wrong.

THOUGH Mr. Truman felt himself obligated to adopt Mr. Roosevelt's policies, it had been hoped he would not permit the Government to be used to enforce union demands regardless of the interests of the public or the rights of the employers. Perhaps Mr. Truman does not know it. But if the Allis-Chalmers charges are true (and the facts seem to sustain them) in the current strike the Government and the union are acting together and the collective-bargaining principle is shoved aside because the unions believe they can get greater concessions through Government seizure of the plants. In this case it is the company which is urging collective bargaining and the union which is avoiding and evading it. The company offered the union the 1½-cent-an-hour wage increase approved by the Government before the strike was called. It has made numerous other proposals on other issues since, but it cannot get the union to sit down "across the table" for the purposes of collective bargaining on these.

"THE union bosses," declares the company, "are not interested in bargaining. Instead, they stall and stall and stall, attempt to break off negotiations—stall and try to break off negotiations again. All in the hope of forcing Government seizure of our plants—all in the hope of gaining from Government sources advantages they never could obtain through the lawful and fair process."

While helping pump water from the United States Gauge Company plant, Sellersville, on Tuesday, Frank Ruggiero suffered a broken left wrist when a two-and-one-half-inch fire hose nozzle slipped from his grasp and crashed against his wrist.

The fireman, who is employed as a barber, also suffered a sprained right thumb in the accident.

Sellersville Fire Company worked all day, Tuesday, pumping water from many homes in the borough.

Of the 30 individuals who attended a hearing of the traffic committee of the Doylestown Chamber of Commerce on Friday evening, when the County Seat's most distressing problem—traffic—was discussed, eight were in favor of having one-way parking on Main street, between Oakland avenue and Broad streets, to relieve the congestion.

Four persons were in favor of widening Main street, in the mid-town section, to allow parking on both sides.

Joseph R. Kenny, in the absence of the chairman of the traffic committee, Paul Histan, served as the presiding officer. Mr. Histan was unable to attend the opening of the session.

The Paris Peace Conference opened yesterday with Premier-President Bidault of France warning the delegates from 21 nations that while they might not find "perfect solutions" they must reach "at least intelligent solutions that are contrary neither to justice nor honor."

Dr. Evatt of Australia demanded that all nations have an equal voice and that all decisions be reached by majority vote.

Dr. Evatt's remarks brought to the surface a long-smoldering revolt of the small nations. The first battle will be fought in the Commission on Rules and Procedure today over the issue of a majority versus a two-third vote. At the same meeting Secretary Byrnes will try to open all conference and committee sessions to the press.

PURCHASE PIGS FOR FUTURE FARMERS

Sows Have Been Distributed To Six Schools in Bucks County

SALE IN QUAKERTOWN

QUAKERTOWN, July 30.—Foundation breeding stock for 12 boys connected with the Future Farmers of America was purchased at a sale of purebred Chester White pigs at the farm of Quakertown High School. These boys are located in Bucks, Lehigh and Montgomery counties.

The sale was made possible by a well-known firm, which paid $50 each for 12 of the best Spring sows produced on the high school farm this year.

Boys to receive these gifts were selected by their representative Future Farmer of America chapters as the most deserving and the most promising swine breeders of their schools.

The agreement signed by the boys receiving the pigs stipulates that each must give one registered sow from the first litter to another boy of the same department.

Plans have been made to provide a class for these Chester White pigs in the Penna. Chester White show which will be held in conjunction with the Allentown Fair in September.

Schools in Bucks county which received the pigs are Springfield Township High, Sellersville-Perkasie, Newtown, Richboro, Quakertown and Hilltown.

Raymond W. Lloyd, who is supervisor of the high school farm here, is secretary of the Penna. Chester White Swine Breeders' Association.

RECONVERSION BLUES

It is now about a year since the surrender of Japan, and somewhat more than eighteen months since events in Europe made clear that Allied victory was at hand.

In that period, the great American issue has been reconversion to peacetime conditions and production.

How has reconversion progressed? This question is the acid test for the Administration of President Truman. If he has been successful in the restoration of peacetime life for the American people, failures in other fields are of secondary importance. On the other hand, if this number one job has been bungled, pretended successes elsewhere are trifles.

The question is also the acid test of the two political parties for the coming election. If the Democrats have made a mess of reconversion, they deserve no fate other than the repudiation of Democratic members of Congress next November 5.

If the peacetime rehabilitation of the American economy has been botched by the Democrats, the Republicans are clearly entitled to have a try.

The Republican record is written in history. The Republicans met the post-Civil War problems with a success that led to the greatest period of expansion in our own or any other land's chronicles. Again after the Spanish-American war, it was the Republicans who paid off the debts and restored order. And once more, after the domestic chaos and debt resulting from our share in the First World War, it was Republican Administration that turned economic hazards into a wave of prosperity which lasted until a world-wide depression caught us in 1929.

With this background, let's look at the facts. How has President Truman made out with reconversion? The facts show that his program has been the most dismal, costly and dangerous failure in history.

AMAZED THAT U. S. CITIZENS ARE CURBED

Ex-WAC Captain Surprised That Americans Submit To Agency Restrictions

SPEAKS BEFORE LIONS

DOYLESTOWN, July 30.—Appearing at the dinner meeting of Doylestown Lions Club at the end of the week, Mrs. George Dyer, former WAC captain, had this to say: "When I returned to the United States I was surprised to find that independent people such as Americans are submitting to the large number of rulings and various restrictions which the OPA and other government agencies are placing upon them."

Mrs. Dyer, wife of writer George Dyer, living near Buckmanville, is an agriculturist. She told of her experiences in the service, both here and overseas, adding:

"During the war we were willing to submit to inconveniences in order to maintain our freedom. But, after all, we have our Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights which assure us that we Americans are an independent people who dislike being pushed around in time of peace."

The former WAC captain began her talk to the service club men by explaining that she enlisted because she wanted to help win the war in a constructive way since her husband was in the service prior to Pearl Harbor Day.

She explained in detail the difficulties which were encountered during training which was the same as all the GI's received. "I was surprised to see what two weeks of basic training could do for 250 women who were shaped into a constructive unit although they came from many different walks of life."

"We were very disappointed to find that we had to take our basic training twice, because the men couldn't decide what to do with us, because so many more women volunteered than we expected. There weren't even uniforms enough to go around," said the ex-captain.

Former Captain Dyer, who was stationed in an agricultural area of Germany, where all the people were well-fed and where no one was starving, pointed out the great difference between American GI's and the Europeans. She described them as "just plain hoodlums since they are always at each other's throats and never do any work as long as there are women around to do it for them."

Commenting on the various conditions in Europe, Mrs. Dyer took a shot at the French when she asserted that "the French are completely laying down on the job as far as reconversion goes. They expect the other nations to do all of the work for them, where as the Germans are making an honest effort to rebuild their devastated land."

TRAINING CLASSES FOR DOGS ARE HELD

Canines Are Rid of Nasty Habits by Dog Trainer At Furlong

2 TYPES OF COMMANDS

FURLONG, July 30.—Obedience classes for dogs are being conducted here by Anton Edelmann, a dog trainer who makes that type of work his hobby.

Mr. Edelmann, who has been holding training classes for the betterment of dogs, explains that all breeds can qualify, but that he prefers thoroughbreds. He also teaches posing and training for bench-show work.

The classes are held on Sunday and Monday evenings and the classes are open to men, women and children, who have dogs which require training.

Stressing proper obedience, Mr. Edelmann, who learned his tricks under Joe Weber, of Princeton, N. J., insists that his canine pupils learn to follow commands from a distance or right next to you.

The dogs, after attending his classes, will respond to a wave of the hand, turn of the body (which are known in the trade as "silent" commands) or a "loud" command.

The 38-year-old dog lover, who is a director of the Quaker City Dog Club and the Bucks County Kennel Club, served as a trainer for Paul Burke, of Elkins Park. He has resided here since October.

His trained models of discipline include German shepherds, 27 of them; great danes, doberman pinschers, Welsh terriers, collies and dachshunds.

Although he shuns hitting a dog, Mr. Edelmann related how only a smack by the hand will really teach and break some dogs of a nasty, belligerent ferocity.

ONE MAN'S OPINION - -

By Walter Kiernan
(Distributed by International News Service)

No peace treaty for Germany will be written at the present peace conference. . . So far the peace-loving allies have not been able to agree on how to handle Berlin.

But there is no reason that the peace conference should run more than a few days. . . All that's to be done is fix the amount of reparations to Russia then everybody can go home.

The man who should be at the conference is the Federal agent who has just ruled that the General Motors four-month tieup was due to "materials shortage" and not the strike.

This will come as a surprise to Walter Reuther but it's nice to know that the boys who carried the "52 or 49" signs weren't really striking. . . They just hurried outside the gate to wait for parts.

The new gag is . . . question: "Who was that picket line I saw you with last night?" Answer: "That was no picket line that was a materials shortage."

A boy like that at the peace conference could prove that there was no war. . . It was just a peace shortage.

The moral is . . . never believe what you see with your eyes or hear with your ears until a government man has explained it.

Many a big deal has been made possible through a small want ad.

FOILS TAXI BANDIT IN AN ATTEMPTED NIGHT "HOLD-UP"

Lawrence George, Perkasio Taxi Driver, Shows Presence of Mind

HITS HORN BUTTON

Three Men Join Search For Would-Be Robber Who Makes Get-Away

PERKASIE, July 30.—The taxi bandit has invaded Bucks County, and for the second time within two weeks taxi drivers have been held up. The last attempt proved a failure.

The driver was Lawrence George, 62, operator of a local taxi. It was a short time after 11:30 Sunday night when George made his customary trip to the station of the Lehigh Valley Traction Company to pick up fares. Arriving at the station he found but one man there, who asked George to take him to a frame house in the third ward.

George, who described the man as being of medium build, about 30 years of age and without a hat or cap, said no conversation was carried on between the two until they arrived at the place he thought the man wanted to be taken.

This was in the vicinity of Main and Walnut streets, and it was here that George said he felt something being pushed into his side. Glancing to his side, George said he thought it was a revolver, and at the same time, George said, the stranger told him it was a stick-up and that he wanted all of the driver's money.

With presence of mind, George, who had all the receipts of the day with him, suddenly leaned over so that his body came in contact with the button of his horn, and just as the horn sounded the stranger forced open the door of the car and fled into the darkness.

Sounding of the horn took place in front of the hotel in South Perkasio, and three men in the hotel ran out and joined George in search of the man, who fled south on Main street.

George immediately reported the attempted robbery to Chief of Police James Schatz, who is conducting an investigation.

Whether the would-be robber came here by trolley from Philadelphia or Allentown or points between is not known. It is thought also he may have been in this vicinity, and went to the trolley where he knew the taxi driver would put in his appearance.

It has been definitely established that the man who attempted the hold-up is not the one who two weeks ago held up and robbed Seth Stout, a Sellersville taxi driver. That man was described as being about 55 years old. The Sellersville taxi driver was less fortunate than George because the bandit relieved him of $50.

GARDENING IN MIDSUMMER

Any gardener will admit that the last week in July is not exactly the most delightful time to work in the vegetable plot. The heat and humidity bring out the sweat in streams, flies, mosquitoes and chiggers attack any unprotected area of skin, and generally it is much more pleasant to lie in the shade on the lawn sipping a long,
cool, refreshing drink.

But the experienced hand knows that to get the most produce out of his garden he must not only work in July but work hard—and fast. For there are many crops that, sown by August 1, will mature before cool weather.
But if he waits longer, the opportunity may be lost.

Some gardeners say, with luck,
there is time to set out cabbage, broccoli, brussels sprouts and cauliflower plants. Then there are the root crops, notably beets and carrots. Turnips can be planted, and with them lettuce, radishes, spinach and kale.

This is a formidable array but it testifies to the importance of July in the gardener's schedule.
If he makes every chance count
he will have his rows yielding until frost comes—and even later, for there are several vegetables
on the list that do not mind a nip or two.

Maybe there are a lot of things
most gardeners would rather do.
But at a time when every pound of food helps deprive the nation's food shortage of a little of its threat, there are few spare time activities that give a man a deeper sense of satisfaction. This year especially it is a good feeling to get hot, bitten, and dusty in a garden under the end-of-July sun.
Or perhaps it just seems so writing
an editorial in a cool office,
sitting in the breeze of a powerful fan.

FREE PRESS MENAGED

Much has been written concerning freedom of speech and freedom of the press. Both are recognized as inalienable rights of a free people. Today England is engaged in controversy over freedom of the press. The labor government demands an investigation of newspapers, apparently with the purpose of proposing laws curbing newspaper criticism of the present regime.

Charges that newspapers are too critical of government have been made in this country in recent years. These charges are not sustained by the evidence. It could be said with more indication that they are not critical enough. There are newspapers which always find the administration to be headed in the right direction. Its most minute acts win approbation of this clique press.
There are others which take both sides of every question with the obvious purpose of not antagonizing the winner.

A people is no longer free when it has been deprived of the right to criticize its government.
Criticism of government is never popular with those on the payroll,
as the situation in England proves. May the American people never forget that a critical press, reflecting a critical public, is the nation's safeguard.

There is not a single field of human affairs, save only the risk of the lives of draftees fighting on war fronts, where the United States has made a substantial progress
during the past year.

In innumerable matters, the nation is worse off now than when the war was in progress.

The government itself is more shaky than ever, in wide disrepute to the White House and Supreme Court
down to the vast army of unneeded Federal employees.
The government has been defied with impunity, and those who defied it are still in power, unrebuked and unpunished —preparing, in fact, to do it again if it suits their purposes.

The infiltration of pro-collectivists continues unabated.
Constitutional government has dwindled to the point where the right of fair and open trial by a jury of one's peers, the cornerstone of liberty for the past thousand years, has virtually disappeared.

Cooperation between President and Congress, the basis upon which our government was intended to function, has vanished. The President has refused to compromise any of his own views to meet the objections of his former associates in the legislative branch. Repeatedly he has vetoed or otherwise killed off programs which represented the considered opinion of the great majority of the Congressional membership, including those of his own party.

Outrageous White House partisanship for political purposes with overbearing labor bosses has disrupted orderly American life. The Communistic objectives of the "destruction of capitalism" have been favored by the Administration in defiance of the laws, the Constitution and the will of the American people.

Never in our history have there been more serious scarcities—not even in the worst days of the war. Never has the amount of production per number of workers been less. Never has it been more hopelessly impossible for those attempting to do business to make plans more than a week ahead.

The dangerous stage of production might be shown in countless items, but that of motor transportation—upon which so much of our economy depends—is sufficient for the purpose. New cars are being produced only in a dribble; nowhere near as fast as old ones are wearing out. And meanwhile the replacement parts which would keep used cars in service have virtually disappeared from the markets.

Meanwhile, national credit has become more and more shaky. Today national obligations are far more than total national assets, and still growing by leaps and bounds. The present budget is upwards of $10 billion
"in the red."

Inflation has been unleashed under the present administration. An already swollen buying-power, much too large in light of scarce commodities, has been augmented by huge additions to currency in circulation, by $10 billion in foreign loans for purpose of buying scarce goods, and by vast subsidy programs.

In the critical field of housing, the national program
boils down to giving veterans financial help in building houses, while the real problem of non-existent materials is untouched. The result has been to shut down construction by non-veterans—but substantially no progress in getting houses built for the veterans.

This is a severe indictment, yet the facts support it.
Where did President Truman make his mistakes?
This is an especially interesting question because two years ago a fairly good reconversion program based on de-control was begun, but was called off because of the German break through.

The mistakes are innumerable. Four big ones stand out. First was the President's refusal to start reconversion when the German defeat gave us only a one-front instead of a two-front war to fight. Second was when he based his peace-time program on further deficit-financing, which he did in his first policy message to Congress last September.

Third was when he committed his most colossal blunder of promising that wages would be allowed to rise but prices be kept frozen. This precipitated a disastrous sequence of strikes, and destroyed the possibility of orderly production-planning.

The fourth was his decision to back up the OPA in its resistance to all "de-control," a decision which led him to veto a fairly good OPA Compromise Bill and thereby force the present monstrosity through Congress.

But whatever points are referred to as being the key mistakes, the big fact is that the President's most important assignment was to direct the nation back to a peacetime economy—and instead, he has led us into a swamp.

The hope of the nation for leadership in restoration of stability, order and Constitutional government lies in the election of a Republican majority of Congress next November 5.

Radio and Screen Star Pays Visit to Bucks Co. School

FARM SCHOOL, July 30.—Beatrice Kay, distinguished radio, stage and screen star, motored from her "Over-Acre" farm in Closter, N. J., to National Farm School and Junior College on Thursday to visit the college and inspect the grounds.

The well known radio star is busily engaged in farming her own 35 acres at Closter when she is not "on the air" or acting.

"I was amazed at the wonderful plant that Farm School has, now that it is operating as a junior college," Miss Kay declared. "I am very much interested in agricultural education for the youth of today, and I certainly know of no finer school to get practical as well as the scientific knowledge."

"I'm quite certain that the future success of this junior college is assured," she added.

This Way To Fashion

Anna L. Galizia, Dress Designer

The most successful dressers today have learned the secret that most women have failed to find. The simple answer is individualism. By this I mean finding your personality and figure-fault and dressing to suit it.

By all means don't be a comparative dresser. For instance, if you have seen on the screen your favorite movie queen, who was wearing one of the most stunning dresses ever to be created, then and there you decided you are going to have an exact copy of it. Oh, my lady, do you know that that very dress took a famous Hollywood designer and a whole wardrobe department a few months in advance to design, create and make? Why? Well, first her figure problem had to be camouflaged (it's true every woman has a figure fault). Second, her coloring had to be taken into consideration (every woman has to consider her colorings). Third, and most important of all, the mood and type movie picture being produced decides just what type of clothes should be used. (We should dress also to our moods and surroundings, for we are always on stage and the people around us are our audience.)

So there you know that they did not have you, you or you in mind when they dressed the movie queen. Remember! You are an individual. Do not forget it. Dress to be different, for that is the keynote of today's best-dressed women.

Note: I will try to bring to the readers each week interesting bits of news about clothes worn in the past.

A wedding in 1836
The gown was made of the sheerest, flimsiest India muslin. Sleeves were long and unusually full. Embroidered gloves trimmed with worked lace to match the veil. A bodice handkerchief was made by the bridesmaid with name in flowered letters in one corner. Exquisite fan, made of carved ivory from India with monogram of the bride in the center. LANGHORNE LEGION DEFEATS S-K TEAM

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, July 30.—The Schutte-Koerting rally in the last inning fell short last evening as the Langhorne Legion won over the iron-workers, 6-3, on the Echo Beach field.

"Kenny" Clark hurled for the Legion and until two were out in the fifth had a no-hitter in his grasp. But "Jimmy" Kelly spoiled this by slamming a double to center to score Mink. Clark finished by allowing five hits.

FLEETWINGS QUITS LEAGUE

The Fleetwings team has withdrawn from the Bristol Suburban League. This announcement was made yesterday by League President Joseph A. Diamanti, who ordered all remaining games of the Fleetwings team forfeited. The "Wingers" have had trouble in fielding a team for the past two weeks. Most of the trouble has been because of the layoffs in the plant, several of the players living outside Bristol and not coming here to play ball.

YOUTH LEAGUE TO MEET

A meeting of the Bristol Youth League will be held tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock in the Diamond Sporting Goods Store, Mill street. All managers are requested to attend. Arrangements will be made for the playoff games.

cases of real collective bargaining." And then the company makes this direct charge: "They are abetted in this by their fellow CIO aides in the Department of Labor." In other words, former CIO officials now holding key posts in the Labor Department have steadily encouraged the unions to hold out until the President seizes the plants. Then the unions would get everything they ask, including the closed shop, which is the main point at issue now. Naturally the union leaders deny they are "stalling" and insist the company's efforts to negotiate are a "jame pretense." However, the report that the Government was about to take over has appeared in print a number of times. The company asserts that these reports were inspired by Labor Department spokesmen supposed to be acting as mediators and that they directly encourage the strikers not to bargain.

AT a White House press conference on June 14, Mr. Truman was asked about these reports and replied that seizure was not planned and he expected the company and workers to get together. Two days later another report known to have come from the Labor Department, insisted that seizure would take place. Since then these negotiations have been almost at a standstill. On July 19, the CIO executive board in Washington requested President Truman and the Labor Department to "take immediate steps" to seize nine plants of the Allis-Chalmers company "in the interests of producing farm implements." And the violent young Mr. Reuther now threatens to extend this strike to the whole farm-implement industry if the Government does not "take over."

AS YET the President has taken no action, though it is clear the Labor Department backs the CIO demands. What this all amounts to is this—Instead of adopting the prescribed method of collective bargaining, these striking unions deliberately toss that "striking principle" overboard and concentrate upon forcing Government seizure of the property.

BETWEEN them, the unions and the Government make a joke of collective bargaining. Between them, they are promoting the sneaking development of nationalization, which is an avowed goal of the Communists. This kind of collusion is offensive to any sense of fair play. It is degrading and un-American. It can be justified only in case of a great national emergency such as distinctly does not exist in the present strike. It is vital that the American people should understand that these professional labor bosses no longer are interested in the collective bargaining about which they have been beating their breasts so long. Nowadays their prime objective is to force governmental seizure. No surer way of breaking down the American system of private enterprise could be devised.

The patient, Louis Dunnigan, 22, of County Line road, near Chalfont, was transferred to a police emergency patrol car to complete his trip to the hospital. The driver of the ambulance was Charles Deacon, 48, of Easton Road, Horsham. No one was injured.

The Horsham ambulance was only slightly damaged, according to an officer of the fire company who stated that the driver of the other car implicated, drove through a red light, causing the accident.

Said to have been traveling at too high a rate of speed, a large trailer-truck barely missed the monument at the turn on Ferry street, New Hope, a few nights ago.

The trailer struck a large electric pole, opposite the home of Harry Lair, and it was broken in several pieces.
